Ailing Layton takes leave

► NDP leader afflicted by new cancer tumours: Hospital statement

Only three months after riding Jack Layton's personal popularity to a historic electoral breakthrough, New Democrats are confronting the tragic possibility that they'll have to soldier on without their charismatic leader.

A frail, raspy-voiced Layton, who has been battling prostate cancer and a recent hip fracture, announced yesterday that he's been diagnosed with a new form of cancer.

The 61-year-old said he's taking a temporary leave of absence in order to "focus on treatment and recovery." The party is to appoint an interim leader — Layton is recommending the slot be filled by newly elected Hull-Aylmer MP Nycole Turmel — on Thursday.

Layton would not reveal what kind of cancer he has or what treatment he is undergoing. But he struck a resolutely optimistic tone, saying he expects to be back in the House of Commons on Sept. 19.

"I'm going to fight this cancer now, so I can be back to fight for families when Parliament resumes," he told a surprise news conference in Toronto.

"I am hopeful and optimistic about the personal battle that lies before me in the weeks to come. And I am very hopeful and optimistic that our party will continue to move forward."

Privately, NDP insiders were shocked by Layton's appearance and how much he's deteriorated since his last public appearance on July 3. The once trim, athletic leader was gaunt and pale, his voice weak and hoarse.

Interim leader

As his Ottawa staffers watched the televised news conference, one insider said: "You could see hearts sinking in the room because the visual was very hard."

Good wishes for a speedy recovery instantly poured in to the NDP's website and over social media. Prime Minister Stephen Harper issued a statement, saying he's "deeply saddened" to learn of Layton's latest illness.

Police lay charges in April shooting

- ▶ Canada-wide warrant issued for Steven Skinner, 38, of Dartmouth
- ▶ HRP police connect murder to 'guns and drugs' culture in Halifax

ALEX BOUTILIER
@METRONEWS.CA

Police have linked the shooting death of 20-year-old Stacey Adams to a "guns and drugs" subculture in Halifax.

Halifax Regional Police Supt. Stephen Sykes would not comment on why police suspect the death of Adams was connected to a drug culture. But he was unequivocal in asserting that connection.

"It's certainly the drug culture, and it's violent," Sykes said at a press conference yesterday. "That's what we're dealing with."

Police issued a Canada-wide arrest warrant for Steven Skinner, a mixed martial arts fighter, yesterday. The 38-year-old is being charged with second-degree murder in relation to Adams' death, and is not believed to be in the Halifax area.

Sykes said Skinner is well known to police.

Brittany Derbyshire, 23, is being charged with accessory after the fact. She was arrested on Friday, and appeared in court yesterday.

Skinner and Derbyshire were "close associates," Sykes said.

When asked how exactly any of the parties were involved with a drug culture, whether they were selling or buying, Sykes said "yes to both." He did not elaborate.

"They were involved in the drug subculture. We'll just leave it at that."

"This type of violence has a huge impact on the overall well-being of a community. We hope these arrests will help bring a sense of security to people living not just in Lake Echo but across HRM."

INSP. JOANNE CRAMPTON, HALIFAX DISTRICT RCMP

Adams was gunned down near a home on Shadewell Lane in Lake Echo on April 10. A Facebook group titled "Rest in peace Stacey Adams" indicates the 20-year-old would have recently become a father.

There have been 46 shootings in the Halifax Regional Municipality so far this year — one more than the municipality recorded for all of 2010.

Police have been critical of the lack of information coming from the public in relation to the rash of gun violence.

Inmate found dead in a cell at Burnside jail

A 48-year old man awaiting trial for second-degree murder was found dead in his cell at the Central Nova Scotia Correctional Facility early yesterday morning.

Officials at the Department of Justice are not confirming the man's identity, but Metro has learned it is Kevin Glen Downing, who has been in police custody since November 2009.

Downing was in the general population at Burnside. His body was found in a single-bunk cell around 4:30 a.m. yesterday.

Justice spokesman Dan Harrison could not say how long it had been since the inmate had been checked on, but preliminary reports suggest the rounds were conducted properly every half hour.

"That's still under investigation," Harrison said yesterday.

"We're (waiting for the) investigation by police and the Justice Department to answer all those questions."

Downing was facing second-degree murder charges in relation to the death of Rose Marie Brown, who was found dead inside an apartment at 533 Beaverbank Rd. on November 10.

Downing was scheduled to make his next court appearance in January, 2012.

Downing was a carpenter by trade. He had no previous criminal record prior to his arrest in 2009.

Both Halifax Regional Police and the Department of Justice are investigating the incident, but foul play is not suspected. HRP are called to investigate any death in the jail.

Blaze was 'like an orange scarf'

Three people escaped unharmed from a third-floor apartment yesterday as flames shot through the roof of a North End home.

The fire erupted at 1:45 p.m. at 5370 Young St. in the apartment above the Futon Store & Pineworks. The store owner was out of the city at the time.

"I'm very happy to say that there was no one requiring rescue and no-body injured today, so that's great news," said

"The firefighters got inside very quickly and were able to run hose lines inside and search for people."

DAVE MELDRUM,
FIRE SERVICES SPOKESMAN

Dave Meldrum, fire services spokesman.

The fire was extinguished by 3:30 p.m., but firefighters still had to break down walls and the ceiling in case any embers remained. Meldrum said that process can take hours.

Fire burned through the third and second floors, though not completely, and the rest of the building has smoke and water damage, he said.

Olena Korbut, manager of Supernatural Health Foods, which is just across the street, said she noticed the fire after a customer told her.

"What I saw is fire started from the corner. It was like a little scarf, like an orange scarf, and after five minutes, it spread immediately, like everywhere," she said.

Suspect sought in cabbie stabbing

A taxi driver was stabbed on Sunday night after police say he and another driver confronted several men in the parking lot of the Clayton Park Shopping Plaza at 278 Lacewood Dr.

Two women had asked a group of drivers for help, saying they were being followed in their car by a vehicle full of men unknown to them, said Const. Brian Palmeter, Halifax Regional Police spokesperson.

"There was an altercation, at which time one of the cab drivers received a stab wound," Palmeter said.

"There's no indication that the women knew the other men in the car, and they simply pulled into the parking lot looking for assistance."

CONST. BRIAN PALMETER,
HALIFAX REGIONAL POLICE SPOKESPERSON

The taxi driver, 31, sustained a non-life-threatening wound in the chest. He was in stable condition in hospital yesterday.

Police say the men in the car threatened the other taxi driver with a piece of construction debris and almost ran them over as they fled the scene.

Police arrived at 11:30 p.m. following a complaint call.

As the taxi drivers pursued the fleeing car, the police followed them to a residence in the 100 block of Old Sambro Road.

There, one male adult and two male youths were arrested and later released without charges.

Another man, 24, was at the residence and had a knife. He faces charges unrelated to the stabbing, including carrying a concealed weapon, possession of a weapon dangerous to the public and obstruction of justice.

The suspect vehicle is also in police custody.

The investigation continues as police search for a suspect who escaped before the car reached the Old Sambro Road residence, Palmeter said.

"We still have a number of people we have to interview and we're trying to determine what led up to the stabbing," he said.

Officer, dog attacked

Three Lower Sackville teenagers face charges after an attack on an officer and police dog.

Police say the youths, 14, 15 and 16 years old, are accused of numerous charges, including theft, assaulting police, resisting arrest and trespassing at night.

At about 11 p.m. on Saturday, Halifax District RCMP and Halifax Regional Police responded to a report of vehicles being broken into around Ridge View Drive in Lower Sackville. Police quickly located the suspects, two of whom fled on foot. They were tracked to a wooded area off Kaye Street where police say they proceeded to attack an officer and a police dog.

"The officer and the dog were able to take control of the situation. Upon the arrival of additional police officers, the two suspects were taken into custody," a press release said.

Police say an HRP police-dog handler and the dog received minor injuries.

The 14- and 15-year-old were released from custody and will appear in court next month. The 16-year-old was remanded and is scheduled to appear in court yesterday.

Two men face drug charges

Two Dartmouth men are facing drug charges after an arrest on Friday night at a traffic stop in Dartmouth.

Aaron Mandel Sparks, 26, and Mason Brent Borden, 22, each face two counts of drug possession for the purpose of trafficking.

At about 11 p.m. on Friday, police stopped a vehicle during a traffic stop on Main Street and discovered one of the two people in the car was breaching his conditions and arrested him.

Police searched the vehicle and seized marijuana. The two men were transported to police headquarters where a second search resulted in a quantity of crack cocaine being seized. ● ALY THOMSON

Province gives $12.9M for new medical examiner location

The province plans to build a new $12.9-million medical examiner's facility in the Burnside Industrial Park.

Construction on the new 27,000-square-foot facility is scheduled to begin in the next two weeks.

"This facility will give them more options and more autopsy suites," said Dan Harrison, a spokesman for the Department of Justice, yesterday.

"This gives us a lot more flexibility and a lot more ability to control the workload that we have."

Harrison said the medical examiner's service can expect to be working in the new building by late 2012.

Bedford RIM location cuts 'relatively small'

- ▶ After jobs have been eliminated, RIM will employ 17,000 worldwide
- ▶ Other Canadian locations are in Ont. cities Waterloo, Mississauga, Ottawa

ALY THOMSON
HALIFAX@METRONEWS.CA

Research in Motion said yesterday that although 2,000 jobs are being cut worldwide, it will not significantly impact the company's facility in Bedford.

"Although RIM is looking to achieve efficiencies across its global operations, the impact of the workforce reduction announced today is relatively small in Halifax," RIM said in an email statement late yesterday.

The BlackBerry maker announced yesterday it will cut about 10 per cent of its employees in what it called a "headcount reduction." Employees based in North America will begin to receive their notices this week, a press release said.

"It certainly has the potential of affecting not only ... my residents but also some good friends of mine."

BEDFORD COUN. TIM OUTHIT

▶ Employees walk toward the Research in Motion building in Bedford yesterday. RIM announced yesterday it will be cutting 2,000 jobs globally.

"The workforce reduction is believed to be a prudent and necessary step for the long-term success of the company and it follows an extended period of rapid growth within the company whereby the workforce had nearly quadrupled in the last five years alone," RIM said in a statement.

Bedford Coun. Tim Outhit said many of his residents and friends work at the facility, and "a relatively small reduction is still a reduction."

"I hope that RIM will bear in mind that the province and the federal government committed a lot of money to bring these jobs to Halifax.... Those are the kind of jobs we want, so obviously I am hoping there will be little to no impact."

Outside the RIM building yesterday, a man who works for the company said he hadn't heard about the reduction and declined to comment.

Norway hearing closed to public

► Suspect threatens more violence ► Judge orders him held in isolation ► Thousands lay flowers in Oslo

The self-described perpetrator of Norway's deadly bombing and shooting rampage was ordered held in isolation at a hearing yesterday after calmly telling the court that two other groups of allies stand ready to join his murderous campaign.

Anders Behring Breivik has admitted bombing Norway's capital and opening fire on a political youth group retreat on an island near the capital. He told authorities he expects to spend the rest of his life in prison. Saying he wanted to save Europe from Muslim immigration, he entered a plea of not guilty that will guarantee him future court hearings and opportunities to address the public, even indirectly.

Police believe Breivik acted alone, despite his grand claims in a 1,500-page manifesto that he belonged to a modern group of crusaders. But they have not completely ruled out that he had accomplices.

Judge Kim Heger ordered Breivik held for eight weeks, including four in isolation.

Norway has been stunned by the attacks and riveted by Breivik's strange writings. Hundreds of reporters and locals thronged the courthouse ahead of his first court appearance yesterday, hoping to get their first glimpse of the man blamed for the deaths of 76 people — lowered yesterday from 93.

Attacks a concern for London 2012 Olympics

IOC president Jacques Rogge is confident police intelligence work will help avert any attack on the London Olympics similar to the bombing and shooting massacre in Norway.

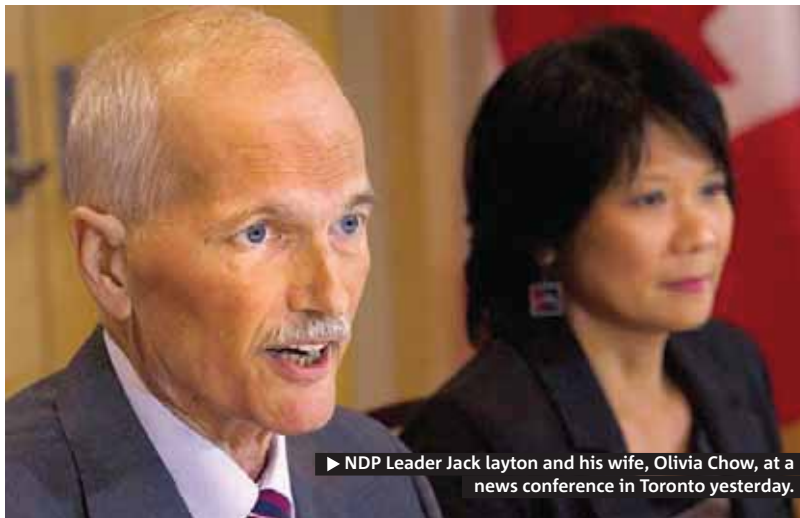

Rogge said British security officials will have taken into account the type of attacks that shook Norway on Friday.

British Olympics Minister Hugh Robertson said the U.K. had already prepared for attacks by "lone wolves" but would re-examine its security plans in the wake of the twin attacks.

"Clearly, where there are lessons to be learned from Norway, we will learn them," he said.

Canadians rallying around Layton

► NDP Leader Jack Layton and his wife, Olivia Chow, at a news conference in Toronto yesterday.

Canadians set aside politics yesterday and stood in solidarity with NDP Leader Jack Layton, who announced he's leaving the job temporarily to fight an unexpected new cancer.

Layton had previously gone public with his struggle against prostate cancer, but his wan face, thin body and raspy voice at a Toronto news conference announcing his latest diagnosis triggered an emotional torrent of support as the depth of this illness became obvious to all.

"My heart breaks for Jack Layton and his family today. Bless his heart for maintaining such high spirits in the face of this terrible illness," said a tweet from a woman identifying herself as Lauren Gilhooly.

Her comment, one of thousands on Twitter, was matched on Layton's Facebook page, where hundreds of Canadians rushed to offer comforting words.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper, who sparred tartly with Layton in the recent election campaign, said he was "deeply saddened today to hear that Jack Layton is temporarily leaving his post as leader of Her Majesty's Official Opposition and leader of the New Democratic Party."

Afghan fears addressed by new U.S. ambassador

► Veteran diplomat Ryan Crocker says U.S. was wrong to withdraw support from Afghanistan in early 1990s

America's new top diplomat in Afghanistan sought yesterday to calm fears of the Afghan people who worry the U.S. is abandoning them after the draw-down of U.S. forces began.

Ryan Crocker, a veteran diplomat who served in Iraq, formally took over as ambassador just as President Barack Obama began withdrawing some of the 33,000 American reinforcement troops he sent in December 2009.

Some Republican lawmakers call the withdrawal plan too risky, saying it does not leave enough coalition troops in the country.

"We must proceed carefully," Crocker said at his swearing-in ceremony at the U.S. Embassy in Kabul. "There will be no rush for the exits. The way we do this in the months ahead will have consequences far beyond Afghanistan and far in the future."

Crocker is faced with mending relations with embattled Afghan President Hamid Karzai, who publicly has cast doubt on America's commitment and has wooed the support of other nations in the region, such as Iran, as a hedge to support his political future.

Karzai's relations with Crocker's predecessor, Karl Eikenberry, were far from smooth.

Just as he was leaving, Eikenberry publicly reproached Karzai for painting American forces as occupiers and enemies.

However Karzai still needs the massive U.S. military and civilian assistance.

10,000^{U.S.} President Barack Obama plans to bring 10,000 troops home by the end of the year.

He needs that support even though he publicly derides U.S. efforts because anti-American sentiment has swelled among the Afghan people, who believe that 10 years of war and international aid has done little to improve their daily lives.

Speaking after he was sworn in, Crocker tried to ease fears about Obama's plan to bring 10,000 U.S. troops home by year's end, as many as 23,000 more by September 2012 with an eye to wrapping up combat by the end of 2014.

Settling 'to be or not to be'

► Physicists get closer to finding 'most wanted particle' that could explain why matter has mass

Scientists hoping to puzzle out how the universe began will find a long-sought theoretical particle — or rule out that it exists — by the end of 2012, the director of the world's largest atom smasher predicted yesterday.

Rolf Heuer, director of the European particle-physics laboratory near Geneva, said his confidence was based on the latest findings from the $10-billion proton collider under the Swiss-French border.

"I would say we can settle the question, the Shakespearean question — 'to be or not to be' — end of next year," he told reporters at a major physics conference in Grenoble.

The Higgs boson isn't just any particle. It's the linchpin of the Standard Model of particle physics theory that explains the Big Bang, because it is believed to answer a fundamental question about why matter has mass.

The particle itself is thought to give mass to other particles, and thus to objects and creatures in the universe.

Heuer said these are "exciting times" for particle physicists because of the latest findings among two separate teams of scientists operating the Atlas and CMS detectors at CERN, the European Organization for Nuclear Research near Geneva, which he directs.

"They have tested the Standard Model very well," Heuer said of CERN scientists.

"They are now ready to bring us into uncharted territory. We are still missing the most wanted particle, the Higgs boson."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elusive particle

Scientists are starting to pinpoint the precise level of high energy where the Higgs boson is expected to be found.

► Last year, the collider threw together two proton beams, tiny particles traveling in opposite directions through a 27-kilometre tunnel at incredible speeds in conditions simulating those one trillionth to two trillionths of a second after the Big Bang.

► The crash on a subatomic scale is aimed more at improving our knowledge of how the universe was created than at finding immediate new technology uses to improve our lives.

► The power produced has been ramped up to ever-new record levels this spring, creating reams of new data that requires endless monitoring and sifting.

B.C. may subsidize shipbuilding

PLUM CONTRACT. The B.C. government added shipbuilding to the list of industries it is prepared to subsidize yesterday.

Pat Bell, minister of jobs, tourism and innovation, announced the government will provide $35 million in training and labour tax credits if North Vancouver's Seaspan Shipyards wins a lucrative federal contact to build navy ships and coast guard vessels.

Under the announcement, B.C. will also provide $5 million to support the productivity and long-term viability of the broader marine sector.

Last week marked the closing date for bids on $35 billion in federal shipbuilding contracts.

Irving Shipbuilding Inc., which owns Halifax Shipyards in Nova Scotia, has confirmed it has submitted a bid.

Fake Apple shops busted in China

Chinese officials found five fake Apple stores and ordered two of them to suspend business while they're investigated, a local government website said yesterday.

Officials couldn't do anything about the other three stores — which displayed Apple signs and logos — because they did not find any fake Apple products for sale, a local newspaper reported.

The investigation follows a blog post last week by an American woman who lives in Kunming in Yunnan province, who stumbled across three shops masquerading as Apple stores in the city. She took photos and posted them on her BirdAbroad blog.

She said they were modelled on the company's iconic stores right down to the winding staircase and the staff uniform of blue T-shirts.

After the blog appeared, the Kunming Trade and Industry Bureau inspected more than 300 electronics stores. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Canadian tech firm to release new generation of BlackBerrys in '12

Research In Motion will cut 2,000 jobs, or about 11 per cent of its global workforce, this year to reduce costs in the competitive smartphone and tablet markets, in which consumers are increasingly turning to Apple and Android products.

The BlackBerry maker provided the details yesterday, about a month after announcing it would reduce its workforce after it had lower BlackBerry smartphone sales in the recent financial quarter.

The cuts are the largest in the Canadian technology icon's history.

In afternoon trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange, RIM's shares were down $1.28, or 4.8 per cent, at $25.19.

RIM, based in Waterloo, Ont., has about 19,000 employees. Those in North America will begin to receive notices this week. Workers in other countries will be told at a later date.

RIM is facing a host of competition in the smartphone market from Apple's iPhone and smartphones using Google's Android operating system.

Its PlayBook tablet, which met expectations of selling 500,000 in the recent quarter, has received lukewarm reviews compared with Apple's iPad.

"If they want to be a top-three or top-five smartphone player, then they have to much more aggressively spend money in the consumer market," said analyst Alkesh Shah of Evercore Partners.

"They have to create a differentiated consumer message," Shah said from New York.

There aren't enough reasons for consumers to buy a

Northern Securities technology analyst Sameet Kanade said he expects a total of about 3,000 job cuts, noting that RIM has increased its number of employees through acquisitions in recent years.

While Kanade said the cuts will be disruptive for staff morale, he said it won't make any difference to RIM's current market share.

TABLE FOR TWO, PLEASE ... NON-CHILDREN

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

Earlier this month, I read a news story about a Pennsylvania restaurant owner who has decided to ban children under the age of six at his establishment. While outraged parents condemned the restaurant for discriminating against their brood, some clientele welcomed the new policy, breathing a heavy sigh of relief knowing that their next $30 entrée wouldn't be served up with a side of screaming toddler.

Misbehaved children, and their seemingly oblivious guardians, can reduce a pleasant dining experience to an evening of exasperated eye-rolling. There have been plenty of times that I've given up on dessert or another glass of wine in order to get away from the piercing sound of a four-year-old in the middle of a temper tantrum.

"Irresponsible parents and their squealing spawn should be banished to family-friendly restaurants that provide crayons with their kids' menu. Sure, the food at these playground snack bars isn't exactly top-notch, but you have to sacrifice a little if you want arcade games as an appetizer."

kids' menu. Sure, the food at these playground snack bars isn't exactly top-notch, but you have to sacrifice a little if you want arcade games as an appetizer.

But while misbehaved tots can be a serious annoyance, I've seen plenty of adults over the years who are just as bad, if not worse, when it comes to mealtime manners.

Grown-ups should know better but often they don't. They snap their fingers at the serving staff, request so many modifications they might as well eat at home and linger at the table while a lineup stretches out the door. Of course, the worst restaurant-goers are those who insist on conducting obnoxious cellphone conversations mid-meal with no regard for their dinner date or the increasingly annoyed patrons around them. The loudmouth suit screaming into his BlackBerry is just as disruptive as the little ones shrieking over their vegetables. Small children may not be ideal dinner companions, but there are also plenty of adults out there who could use a crash course in dining etiquette.

Worth Mentioning

HAPPY MEALS. Emotions can be modified by the intake of food even when people don't taste the food or realize they are receiving nutrients, new research indicates. Participants in a study were blinded as to the nature of an intragastric infusion, and had 40-minute fMRI neurologic scans as they provided responses about their mood, fullness, hunger or nausea.

Sad or neutral emotions were induced with music played through headphones and with images of facial expressions depicting either sad or neutral emotions back-projected onto a screen.

Hunger scores rose during sad emotion and decreased during neutral emotion conditions. The effect of a sad mood was weakened by fatty acid.

"The novelty lies in the fact that it's purely subliminal or what we call unconscious brain signalling happening here," said lead author Dr. Lukas Van Oudenhove.

"Something I like about this study is that it starts from the body, from the stomach, and it goes to the brain," said Dr. Giovanni Cizza.

WEIRD NEWS

This is how you end up waking up in Vegas

One day in the spring of 1979, Arthur Gerald Jones, a well-connected Chicago financier and father of three, left his posh home to run an errand and vanished, never to return.

Despite the FBI's best efforts to figure out what happened to the powerful commodity trader, no trace was ever found of Jones. In 1986, an Illinois court declared him dead, and social security paid $47,000 in survivor benefits to his wife and children.

But late last week, the shroud of mystery enveloping the 32-year-old case was suddenly pulled back when Jones, now 72, was discovered living in Las Vegas, where he has been working as a bookie at a casino.

According to a court affidavit, Jones told a special investigator with the Social Security Administration that he had a seat on the Chicago Board of Trade as a commodities trader, but was forced to sell his seat to pay off a debt incurred when he made a trading error. He lost his job in the process and, fearing what investigators have speculated may have been relations with the Chicago mafia, Jones decided to leave his wife of 17 years and family.

A career in high gear

► After finding success on TV's The Wire, Idris Elba launches his career with a slew of new movies that have a comic book theme ► Metro caught up with the rising star at Comic-Con

NED EHRBAR
MWN IN HOLLYWOOD

Between last year's the Losers, this year's Thor and next year's Ghost Rider: Spirit of Vengeance, British actor Idris Elba seems to have a thing for comic book adaptations.

But there's still one superhero that's eluded him: Avengers member Luke Cage. Not that he's complaining, mind you.

Between two Emmy nominations, Ridley Scott's upcoming Alien prequel, Prometheus, and Guillermo del Toro's Pacific Rim, which starts shooting in October, the former Wire star has plenty to keep him busy.

Metro caught up with Elba in the middle of the Comic-Con madness for a status update.

What are you most excited to see or do while at Comic-Con?

Dude, I don't get to do anything. I do like seeing the audience react to what we've got to show them for Ghost Rider, because I just saw it and it's phenomenal.

You've been doing very well with comic book movies lately.

Well, two films, two characters, really. And the Losers as well.

I thought that film was good. It had a lot of opportunity to be better — not better but more well received. It didn't quite do it, but I liked the film. I thought it was well directed. Sylvain White did that, and he's great.

► Actors Idris Elba and Nicolas Cage speak at a Ghost Rider: Spirit of Vengeance panel during Comic-Con 2011 in San Diego last week.

Speaking of comic book characters, you've mentioned wanting to play Luke Cage in a film.

I'd like having a shot at that. But listen, we need to know there's an appetite for that. I need the audiences that like Luke Cage to come up and say they want to see a Luke Cage film with me in it.

I'm part of the Marvel family, and I think now they might be aware that there's this little appetite to do it, but at the same time, I'm also part of the Thor story, so we'll see.

What can you tell us about Prometheus?

I have to say, it's an enormous film — enormously rich in its depth, its complexity. The filmmaking is second to none.

It's none other than the great Ridley Scott, and there are some really good actors in it. I can say this: The wait for Ridley to return to a film like that is definitely going to be rewarded with something exciting You've had a few roles now for which people recognize you. What comes up most?

The Wire, mainly. It was my first American calling card. But now Luther is starting to, and then Heimdall [in Thor], believe it or not. A lot of people are actually like that. It's a tiny part in that film — huge film, tiny part, but it definitely has resonated with some people.

Source Code

Genre: Sci-fi

Director: Duncan Jones

Stars: Jake Gyllenhaal, Michelle Monaghan

Source Code's almost risible collision of the bogus science and cranial confusion recalls Groundhog Day, Inception and Avatar. It also shares the isolation and alienation found in Moon, director Duncan Jones' heralded debut.

Continually returning to its opening scene, the film has Jake Gyllenhaal chatting up Michelle Monaghan on a Chicago commuter train, in a situation meant to remind us of Strangers on a Train. It's more schlock than Hitchcock, but here's where good casting and a little patience pay off.

Gyllenhaal is U.S. army Capt. Colter Stevens, a decorated helicopter pilot who awakens to find himself part of a science experiment.

The science is sketchy, to say the least. Jones allows Jeffrey Wright, as the Source Code project head, to ham it up with a wacky professor turn.

Better that Jones should concentrate on the performances, and he gets three fine ones from Gyllenhaal, Monaghan and Farmiga, who invest a good deal of emotion into a farcical situation.

If all else fails, it's a decent thriller at a brisk 93 minutes, including all the repeats. ● PETER HOWELL

Cause of death unknown after Winehouse autopsy

► Family visits memorial outside home ► Spokesperson says funeral will be held today

An autopsy on singer Amy Winehouse Monday failed to determine what killed the 27-year-old star, leaving fans and family with a weeks-long wait for the results of toxicology tests.

Winehouse's devastated parents visited mourners outside her north London home to thank them for their support.

The singer, who had struggled with drug and alcohol abuse for years, was found dead Saturday at home by a member of her security team, who called an ambulance. It arrived too late to save her.

The Metropolitan Police said Monday that a forensic post mortem "did not establish a formal cause of death and we await the results of further toxicology tests." Those are expected to take two to four weeks. An inquest into the singer's death was opened and adjourned at London's St. Pancras Coroner's Court. During the two-minute hearing, an official read out the name, birth date and address of Winehouse, described as "a divorced lady living at Camden Square NW1."

"She was a singer songwriter at the time of her death and was identified by her family here at St. Pancras this morning," said coroner's officer Sharon Duff.

Duff said the scene of Winehouse's death "was investigated by police and determined non-suspicious."

In Britain, inquests are held to establish the facts whenever someone dies violently or in unexplained circumstances. Assistant Deputy Coroner Suzanne Greenaway said Winehouse's inquest would resume on Oct. 26.

The singer's father, mother and brother visited her home yesterday, stopping to inspect the mounds of bouquets, candles and handwritten notes across the road from the Victorian house.

Her father, Mitch Winehouse, thanked mourners for their tributes.

"I can't tell you what this means to us — it really is making this a lot easier for us," he said.

A rowdy night for Lohan

Lindsay Lohan seems to be slipping back into bad habits, if a night out in Hollywood is any indication. The troubled starlet hit up a friend's birthday, showing up sober and only ordering juice from the wait staff, but by the end of the night "she could barely stand," an eye-witness tells Radars Online. The source says Lohan was sneaking gulps of other people's drinks while passing them on and taking shots of vodka on the sly. Lohan was later spotted holding onto curtains for support and screaming into her cell phone before she left the club around 2 a.m. "When she got to her Escalade she just collapsed into it," the source says. Lohan, who is still on probation, is legally allowed to drink.

While Glee boss Ryan Murphy recently said stars Lea Michele, Cory Montheith and Emmy nominee Chris Colfer would be leaving the show after next season, that may not actually be the case. "Here's the exact thing: [The characters] are seniors, so they're graduating," executive ► Kids who watch too much TV are at increased risk of obesity, hypertension and glucose intolerance.

Turn off and tune in ► Children who take in high amounts of television are at heightened risk of chronic disease

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Peel those kids away from the TV this summer.

A study conducted at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., has found that children and adolescents who watched more than four hours per day of TV were 2.5 times more likely to have heightened risks for chronic disease than those who watched less than an hour per day.

The study was looking for cardio-metabolic risk factors, which are signals that the body could be heading in the direction of heart disease and type 2 diabetes.

These included obesity, hypertension, fats in the blood and glucose intolerance.

"These risk factors are becoming more prevalent in children and adolescents," says Valerie Carson, a PhD student in the school of kinesiology and health studies, who was lead author on the paper.

"This particular study found the most significant health risk at greater than four hours per day (of TV). This is concerning because these risk factors can track from childhood to adulthood," she adds.

Carson and her supervisor Ian Janssen, associate professor in the school of kinesiology and health studies at Queen's, took into account age, gender, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, physical activity levels and diet, and still drew the same conclusion.

"Even if children and adolescents are active, if they engaged in high daily TV use, they may still have cardio-metabolic risk factors," says Carson.

For the study, she and Dr. Janssen studied the habits of 2,527 children and adolescents who were enrolled in the National Health and Nutrition Examination Surveys (NHANES).

TV is really quite wicked: other studies have found excessive screen time is linked to increased violence, negative self-image, and higher amounts of smoking, drinking and drug use.

Carson's article was published recently in the journal BMC Public Health.

Getting kids active

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

It's an old refrain of parents: "Turn off the TV and go outside!"

Did you know that kids should be active for at least 60 minutes a day to stay healthy?

That is the guideline issued recently by Participation and the Canadian Society for Exercise Physiology for children from ages five to 11.

In addition, kids shouldn't stare at a screen for more than two hours per day. This includes TV as well as computers and video games.

Ideally, each week's activities should include a few things.

The first is getting sweaty and out of breath three times a week.

And another is doing activities that strengthen bone and muscles three times. Children don't have to know they are "exercising," just that they are having fun. Try rollerblading, playing tag, running, swimming, biking, or playing at the park.

► Getting kids active is easier than you think.

Dear Patsyb:

I fully understand your feelings. We've all been in your shoes!

I think this is the real problem... if you don't invite your cousin's husband, you will do more damage and create more of a scene than if you do invite him.

You risk really offending your cousin and you will put her in a very awkward position.

Ask yourself: what is she supposed to tell her husband about why he can't come to your party?

It's not fair that your cousin be placed in that position. You have two choices: invite the cousin with her husband or don't invite either of them.

If you're a good sport, you will invite them both and find someone you can invite to keep the pesky husband occupied in conversation so he leaves you all alone!

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

For new parents, here's the bottom line. If you don't get serious about saving for post-secondary studies, that cooing little bundle is almost certainly going to be severely burdened by student debt.

If current trends continue, a four-year degree is likely to cost $80,000 for live-at-home students by 2025 and $125,000 for those away from home.

The good news is that new parents are putting aside those education pennies. Across Canada, nearly 90 per cent of those with young children have started saving, according to the TD Canada Trust 2011 Education and Finances Survey.

Thinking ahead

Do you have an RESP for your child?

- ▶ 89% of parents under 35
- ▶ 60% of parents age 45-54

The goal for those with younger children should be to get the maximum Canada Education Savings Grant of 20 per cent on the first $2,500 annually per child contributed to an RESP (Registered Education Savings Plan). That's a little over $200 monthly. Even if you just invest the money in GICs and bonds you'll have about $40,000 after 10 years and nearly $90,000 after 18.

For parents of teens, education financing is a big stress point. TD's survey discovered that more than 85 per cent of parents (at least in Ontario) with kids under 18 don't expect to be able to pay the shot for

Interestingly, fewer of those parents expect their children to help pay for their own education, 31 per cent down from 39 per cent last year. The decline may have to do with the difficulty in finding summer jobs.

My daughter, a student chef, has only managed irregular shifts so far this summer at two different restaurants.

Parents with teens, and little in the way of savings, might consider postponing education. A couple of years of living at home and working, even at a minimum wage job, could easily mean the difference between a decade of debt and a nearly debt-free degree.

Working roughly 35 hours a week at minimum wage will bring in about $20,000 annually. Saving 75 per cent of that over two years is $30,000. For a live-at-home student-to-be, that money, along with RESP savings, will go a long way to reducing student debt.

The only thing that made it onto the scoresheet last night at Mainland Common was a handful of yellow cards.

In a battle of the top two men's teams in the Nova Scotia Soccer League EastLink Premiership, Halifax City and Halifax Dunbrack fought to a scoreless draw in a gritty match with a nasty edge.

"Lots of fouls, lots of cards ... It was a very physical game," said Dunbrack midfielder Derek Gaudet, who was a focal point of City's attention.

"Neither team really had possession. There were only three or four passes and then a turnover, so it was a struggle to find a rhythm."

Dunbrack, the defending provincial champion, is still adjusting to life without all-stars Shawn Kodejs and Jonattan Corboda and sits second overall with a 6-3-2 record.

Elbourne looks solid in call-up

Liam Elbourne continues to impress.

Elbourne helped Team Atlantic to a fourth-place finish at the Canadian Soccer Association's under-15 championship in St. John's, N.L., on the weekend, winning the Golden Boot award as the tournament's top scorer.

Hammond said he wouldn't be surprised if his team meets Dunbrack in next month's provincial final.

"We've had a rivalry for the past four or five years," he said. "Hopefully, in the playoffs, we'll come out on the winning end."

Ex-Halifax hoopsters to play for Canada

Former Halifax Rainmen stars Jermaine Anderson and Jevohn Shepherd have cracked the Canadian senior men's basketball roster for the summer.

Anderson and Shepherd, both of Toronto, will represent the country at the FIBA Americas Championship in Mar Del Plata, Argentina starting Aug. 30. The tournament is part of qualifying for the 2012 Summer Olympics in London.

The squad is already in Europe for a series of exhibition games against France, Italy and Czech Republic. The tour wraps up on Aug. 5.

Shepherd played 14 games with the Rainmen in the Premier Basketball League in 2010, averaging 6.9 points per game. Anderson averaged 15.1 points and 6.5 assists per game during the Rainmen's inaugural campaign in the American Basketball Association in 2007-08. ● METRO

Nova Scotia triumphs in flag football

Receiver Ian Melanson took offensive MVP honours as Nova Scotia won gold in the under-18 men's category at the Canadian flag football championships at Wickwire Field yesterday.

Nova Scotia topped Quebec 16-15 in the final game of the round-robin to secure the triumph.

Also at Wickwire, the Nova Scotia's under-18 women's team won bronze, getting a defensive MVP performance from Mariah Wright. ● METRO

► NFLPA's team reps unanimously vote to accept offer ► Puts longest work stoppage in NFL history to rest

Now it can be said with certainty: Get ready for some football!

NFL players voted to OK a final deal yesterday, days after the owners approved a tentative agreement, and the sides finally managed to put an end to the 4 ½-month lockout.

"This is a long time coming, and football's back," NFL commissioner Roger Goodell said, "and that's the great news for everybody."

At a joint appearance outside NFL Players Association headquarters in Washington, Goodell and NFLPA head DeMaurice Smith were flanked by some of the owners and players who were involved in the talks. They spoke shortly after the NFLPA executive board and 32 team reps voted unanimously to approve the terms of a deal.

"We didn't get everything that either side wanted ... but we did arrive at a deal that we think is fair and balanced," Smith said.

Owners overwhelmingly approved a proposal Thursday, but some unresolved issues still needed to be reviewed to satisfy players.

The sides worked through the weekend and wrapped up the details yesterday morning on a final pact that runs for 10 years, without an opt-out clause, a person familiar with the deal told the AP on condition of anonymity.

Owners decided in 2008 to opt out of the league's old labour contract, which expired March 11, and led to the lockout.

Owners can point to victories, such as gaining a higher percentage of all revenue, one of the central issues — they get 53 per cent, the players get 47 per cent. The old deal was closer to 50-50. There's also a system that will rein in spending on first-round draft picks.

Players, meanwhile, persuaded teams to commit to spending nearly all of their salary cap space in cash and won changes to practice rules that should make the game safer.

The owners also didn't get their wish of expanding the regular season from 16 to 18 games.

Back in business

A tentative timeline allows NFL clubs to start signing 2011 draft picks and rookie free-agents today.

► Conversations with veteran free-agents could also start today with signings possibly beginning Friday.

► Under the proposed schedule, training camps open for 10 of 32 teams tomorrow, 10 more on Thursday, another 10 on Friday and the last two teams on Sunday.
► The league year begins on

Aug. 4 if the CBA has been ratified by the NFLPA, which must first re-establish itself as a union. All clubs must be under the salary cap.

► First pre-season game, with Seattle at San Diego, set for Aug. 11.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You have been expecting too much from a relationship. Focus on what you have in common, not on what divides you.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Set yourself a reasonable work schedule and make sure you stick to it.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 There is no need to change your life in any radical way.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Never forget that the best way to change the world is to change yourself first.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Don't worry if you are not in the most-suitable of moods today because you have important things to think about.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Look out for your own interests today.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 If there is something you have overlooked, or ignored, you will have to face up to it and deal with it today.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 It's time for a reality check.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Why are you clinging on to something that is past its sell by date?

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Do everything in your power to make sure that employers and people in positions of authority know who you are and what you can do.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Life will be a breeze today.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Generally you steer clear of events over which you have no control, but today you will go out of your way to take risks. Maybe tomorrow you'll regret it but your hunches are often right. SALLY BROMPTON
